DISPATCH FROM GEN. BANKS.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 26.

The following is the latest received at the War Department from Gen. BANKS:

WILLIAMSPORT, May 26.

Hon. Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War:

We believe that our whole force, trains and all, will cross in safety. The men are in fine spirits, and crossing in good order. The fight of last night was fearful. The enemy followed us last night on our march, but has not made his appearance this morning. The news of your movements South has undoubtedly caused them to look out for their safety. Your dispatch was read to the troops this morning amid the heartiest cheers.

N. P. BANKS, Major-Gen. Comdg.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 26—6 P. M.

No reliable information of the particulars of the retreat of our forces from Winchester, Va., to Williamsport, Md., has been received at the War Department. Dispatches from Williamsport have to be sent to Hagerstown by mounted messengers. From that point they are telegraphed to us. As soon as received they will be given to the public.

THE LATEST FROM GEN. BANKS.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May, 26, 1.

The following was received at the War Department, at 11 P. M.:

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 26—11 P. M.

To the President:

I have the honor to report the safe arrival of my command at this place last evening at 10 o'clock, and the passage of the First Corps across the river to-day, with comparatively but little loss. The loss of men in killed, wounded, and missing in the different attacks to which we commenced from Strasburgh on the morning of the 24th inst., I am unable now to report; but I have great satisfaction in being able to represent that, although serious, it is much less than might have been anticipated, considering the very great disparity of forces engaged, and the long-sustained plans of the enemy, which aimed at nothing less than the entire capture of our force. A detailed statement will be forwarded as soon as possible.

My command encountered the enemy in a continued succession of attacks, and in very considerable engagements at Strasburgh, Middletown, Newtown, at a point also between these places, and at Winchester. The force of the enemy was estimated at from 15,000 to 20,000 men, with very strong artillery and cavalry supports.

My own force consisted of two brigades, less than 4,000 strong, all told; 1,000 cavalry, ten Parrot guns, and six smooth-bores. The substantial preservation of the entire supply is a source of gratification. It numbered about five hundred wagons, on a forced march of fifty-three miles, thirty-five of which were performed in one day, subject to constant attack in front, rear, and flank, according to its position, by the enemy in full force.

The panics of teamsters and the mischievous of their passage of more than one night, with slender preparations for food and fuel, I feel not much more than fifty wagons. A full statement of this loss will be forwarded forthwith. Very great commendation is due to Capt. S. R. HOFFMAN, Acting-Quartermaster, and to Capt. E. G. BARNWELL, for the safety of the train.

Our troops are in good spirits, and occupy both sides of the river.

N. P. BANKS,
Major-General Commanding.

EXPLANATION OF THE REBEL MOVEMENT.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 26.

The hope of the enemy was, by a dash in great force, to destroy BANKS, and get full possession of the crossing of the Potomac at Harper's Ferry and Williamsport. BANKS defeated their plan by his rapid and masterly retreat. He is now safe, with his army and supplies across the Potomac, and is powerfully reinforced.

The advance of the enemy is stayed, and her retreat is believed to be already cut off. The enemy's movement is regarded here as a desperate dash, completely foiled, and about to recoil in his destruction.

WHAT IS THOUGHT IN WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 26.

The rapidity of Gen. BANKS from the Shenandoah Valley caused the greatest surprise, because the country was kept so ignorant of his force. It turns out that, instead of having a corps d'armée and "a large force," as you state in Sunday's TIMES, and as the country generally had believed, he had not more than a full brigade left to him when he was attacked by the enemy. BANKS repeatedly and earnestly protested against being stripped of his command; and many of his friends advised him to resign, but this he bravely refused to do. There is felt to be a heavy responsibility on somebody in this matter, and it is not yet put to rest on Secretary STANTON. The President unconsciously? takes the responsibility.

THE LINE OF GEN. BANKS' RETREAT INTO MARYLAND.

but it is well known, he only "permitted" to be done what within his own judgment disapproved.

The enemy's raid is at an end, and has fallen far short of his expectations, and the country may yet have reason to rejoice in what has occurred, if it shall result, as every one hopes, in the President's throwing off the dangerous counsels to which he evidently is, and trusts more to his own clear head and honest heart.

There is no need, for a moment's anxiety about Washington, and Gov. ANDREW's Proclamation No. 2 excites a general smile. Gen. JACKSON's rebel army is probably nearer to Staunton, Virginia, at this reading, than he is to Washington, and much more anxious to reach the former place than the latter.

The events of the two past days have wonderfully stimulated our Government, and there is now a "movement along the whole line." Drum parade at Fredericksburgh, (it is supposed, will cease, and Cabinet visits to that point be suspended till the war is over. On the whole, the martial aspect of affairs is more encouraging since the escapade of Gen. JACKSON than before.

There is universal sympathy felt and expressed here for Gen. BANKS, and the hope of all is that he may be furnished an army suitable to his rank, and allowed to become his own avenger. It is not believed that his loss is serious, except in KENLY's regiment, the first attacked; and the fact that he retreated so far in the face of an enemy so overwhelming, and crossed his men in good order and good spirits, is taken as proof of the highest generalship. No other course could have kept JACKSON from crossing into Maryland.

The dispatch this morning received from Gen. BANKS, dated at Williamsport, Md., and announcing the belief that his whole force, trains and all, would cross the Potomac in safety, was hailed with the liveliest satisfaction. The dispatch from the Secretary of War which Gen. BANKS refers to as having read to his troops called the liveliest cheers, is understood to have contained the thanks of the President and Secretary, for his excellent conduct of the retreat. High military authority pronounces it one of the most masterly movements of the war, and regular officers here, who have been slow to acknowledge the generalship of Gen. BANKS, now accord to him great tact and ability as a commander. The fact that at Winchester, with a small force of less than five thousand men, he stubbornly held his ground, and resisted the enemy's force of three times his own, and afterwards retreated in order, is taken as evidence of superior generalship.

There are no details of the fight at Winchester. The allusion to it in the dispatch of Gen. BANKS creates anxiety among the friends of the troops in his command. It is feared that many of the wounded were of necessity left to the mercy of the enemy.

A report was circulated this afternoon—probably founded on an intimation in the dispatch of BANKS—to the effect that JACKSON has drawn back his advanced force, and was not likely to attempt to get possession of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, although he swore an oath when routed by SHIELDS, to drive that thoroughfare at an early day. He may again have to make good his escape from the gallant Irish Brigadier.

The steps taken to regain the lost ground would, if known to the public, establish the vigilance of the President; but for prudent reasons they must not be developed at this time. It is enough to say that they are considered all sufficient to insure not only the safety of the capital, but also to prevent the further advance of the enemy in the direction of the Potomac, and probably to insure the capture, bag and baggage, of JACKSON's entire force. Should the well devised plans be carried out, as there is every reason to suppose they will be, what yesterday seemed a serious disaster to our cause may be made to result in a very decided and important triumph over the enemy.

THE FIGHT AT FRONT ROYAL.

Particulars of the Defeat of Col. Kenley's Command.

The Rebels Reported to be Carrying the Black Flag.

BALTIMORE, Monday, May 26.

The following is the statement of Capt. GEORGE SEARS, of the First Maryland Regiment, who succeeded in effecting his escape from the fight at Front Royal:

"About 1 o'clock, in the afternoon, a negro, mounted upon horseback, came dashing into camp, crying out that 'The rebels are coming in great numbers, and they will surround you and cut you off.' At first the men laughed at him, stating that they had waited too long for them—they didn't believe a word of it. As soon as Col. KENLY, however, saw the man, he became satisfied of their approach. The long roll was beaten, and the men responded, springing hastily to arms, and forming in line by companies. Very soon the rebels made their appearance, and, strange to say, not a single gun was fired by the pickets of the First Maryland Regiment. It may have been that, in consequence of a sudden turn of the road, they were surprised and captured. Company A was ordered to deploy as skirmishers, and support a section of KEARSE's Pennsylvania Battery, which numbered about forty men. In the meantime the Lieutenant-Colonel of the Twenty-ninth Infantry, with a small detachment of his men, who had been acting as a pioneer corps, also formed and prepared to receive the enemy. The battery was soon engaged, and discharged shot and shell for near two hours, until nearly all their ammunition had been expended. The firing was spirited, and there is no doubt of its efficacy. Unable, however, to withstand such an overwhelming force, the order was given to retire, which was done, and the entire column moved over the Shenandoah River, the retreat being covered by a company of the Fifth New-York Cavalry, about eighty strong. Whilst passing over the bridge, the captain distinctly saw the rebel forces. There was a very strong column of cavalry, say four squadrons, (eight companies,) and five regiments of infantry. Of this force two regiments of infantry and two squadrons of cavalry were fording the stream, the water being very low. The order double quick, was given, and the Nationals took to the pike, where another stand was made, Col. KENLEY addressing the men and telling them their only chance was to stand and fight to the last, especially as the rebel cavalry were fast pushing on and displaying a black flag. Capt. SEARS states that he did not see them display the white flag.

A second stand was made, and many shots discharged, when the New-York Cavalry, still in the rear of the column, broke and retreated, riding pell-mell through the ranks of the infantry. A part of the Maryland command retreated to a wheat-field, and there made still another stand, firing rapidly and with deliberate precision. Presently on came rebel cavalry cutting right and left, and terribly yelling like Indians. In some instances, neither the dying or wounded were spared, and in two instances the Captain saw the rebels draw their pistols and shoot them in the head whilst laying on the roadside. The Captain told the men they had better return to the Pike and escape as they best could.

He had not proceeded far before a cavalry officer rode up to him and demanded his sword and pistol, which he threw upon the ground, the rebel at the time drawing a pistol upon him. In the confusion of the scamper, however, he succeeded in regaining his pistol, and observing a rebel shoot one of the First Maryland, he drew his pistol and shot him, and succeeded with Lieut. CAMPBELL in securing the rebel's horse and riding off.

After proceeding about two miles, they came across the ambulance in which Col. KENLEY lay, attended by Surgeon MIDDLETON, of the regiment. The vehicle was passing along the Pike, and had been recently fired into by the rebel cavalry. Feeling themselves closely pursued, they abandoned the horses, and leaping several fences, took to the woods, where they managed to conceal themselves until the enemy gave up the search. There were but six companies of the First Maryland Regiment engaged in the fight, the remaining four being deployed as follows—on picket duty and as provost guard at Front Royal."

GEN. BANKS' CAMPAIGN.

Sketch of Gen. Banks' Three Months' Campaign in the Valley of the Shenandoah—His Triumphant March from Harper's Ferry to Staunton—His Disastrous Retreat from Staunton into Maryland.

Precisely three months ago, on the 26th of February last, the army of Maj.-Gen. BANKS crossed the Potomac at Harper's Ferry, and took up its line of march along the valley of the Shenandoah. The column numbered some thirty thousand men, finely drilled and well equipped; and was composed of regiments from almost every loyal State in the Union—from New-England, from New-York, Pennsylvania and Maryland, and from the Northwestern tier of States as far as Wisconsin. Its work was to destroy or drive from the valley the rebel force under Gen. Thos. J. JACKSON, (commonly called "Stonewall" Jackson,) who had, during the Winter, held possession of that portion of Virginia extending from the Blue Ridge to the hills in Berkeley County, and from the Potomac up the northern to the Southwestern limit of the State. Gen. BANKS' column set out in high spirits, anxious to measure swords with the rebel foe, and with a perfect confidence in the accomplished soldier and statesman who was in command. The day after reaching the soil of Virginia, the advance began. The enemy was driven from Charlestown, discomfited in innumerable cavalry skirmishes, his whole army was defeated at Winchester, he was pursued to Strasburgh, from thence to Mount Jackson, the terminus of the Valley Railroad; from thence to New-Market, to Harrisburgh, and to Staunton—a distance of over a hundred miles from where he started; while a harassing series of cavalry and infantry skirmishes was kept up along the whole line. Gen. BANKS' work, so far as his own Department was concerned, was now nearly completed. He had only to advance upon Staunton, defeat or drive away the rebels there, hold the railroad running across the Blue Ridge, and then his fine army would be ready for further operations wherever it might be needed. Suddenly, and while near this point, it was darkly given out from Washington that BANKS' army was on the retreat—why, no common mortal could divine. It was reported early in the present month to be back at New-Market, back in Woodstock, back in Strasburgh, where it temporarily made a halt, and it leaked out from the telegraph that one-half of the column (BANKS' division) was on the wing over the Manassas Gap Railroad to Fredericksburgh—for what purpose nobody knew [illegible] with the remnant of BANKS' army at Strasburgh, defeated a part of it at Front Royal, drove the remainder back from Strasburgh to Winchester, defeated it there with great loss, drove it back in Maine from Winchester to the Potomac; and there, on Tuesday, [illegible] after a retreat of a hundred [illegible] three miles a day, as we have said, from the time it set out. The advance, so gloriously and hopefully made in February, after all but accomplishing its object, ended in disaster and disgrace to the National arms in May. For which, whoever may be responsible, Gen. BANKS is not.

We will recapitulate, a little more in detail, some of the events of the forward and retrograde movements.

As already mentioned, the army reached the Virginia shore on the 20th of February, crossing the Potomac on a pontoon bridge. (The main rebel army, it must be remembered, was at this time still at Manassas.) It at once took possession of Bolivar Heights, near Harper's Ferry; the next day moved forward to Charlestown, where the enemy was discovered to be in some force; but he was driven out with loss, and on the 26th that town was occupied. Hundreds of loyal refugees, who had been expelled by the rebels, returned to their deserted homes; and the loyal inhabitants were overjoyed at the deliverance they, too, had received. Harrisburgh, also, was occupied by the Union troops, and the track of connecting the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, which had been held by the rebels for near a year, was entirely carried on, and every point of the road was protected from Harper's Ferry to Cumberland. The weather at this time was very cold, and the snow and dust tried the endurance and strength of our troops, but they stoutly bore up under their hardships. In the first days of March, Gen. BANKS began to push out detachments to occupy various important points off the line of the railroad, to prevent the possibility of the rebels cutting it. Now began a series of severe and harrassing skirmishes between our advance and the rearguard (ASHBY's cavalry) of the rebels, in which frequently several regiments of infantry took part. Skirmishes occurred at Berryville and at a hundred other places. Indeed, every foot of ground was contested by the enemy, though he did not dare to give battle in force. On the 6th of March, it was ascertained that the rebel JACKSON's column was in full force at Winchester, behind formidable earthworks, mounting thirty guns and supported by field batteries. On that day we occupied Smithfield, seven miles northeastof Charlestown. On the 7th, Gen. BANKS detached Col. GREATON DAVIS, which marched down to Leetsburgh, drove out the rebel Gen. HILL with his whole command, from the town and the surrounding forts, and occupied the place. This brilliant achievement—a well-timed blow and a skillful manœuvre—gave us possession of a position which up to that time had been considered as one of the greatest rebel strongholds, and held by them been often pronounced impregnable. They did not, however, attempt a defense, as Gen. BANKS had completely outflanked them, and rendered it useless. From Charlestown Gen. BANKS began to move forward toward Winchester, and his proximity to that point and Strasburgh, from which he could menace the rear of the rebels at Manassas, caused the evacuation of that world-famous stronghold on the 9th and 10th of March. On the 12th Gen. BANKS advanced upon Winchester, and JACKSON's rebels escaped from the place just in time to save their skins. (In these retreats the rebels had the advantage of our forces, in that they traveled upon the railroad, but tore it up behind them to hinder pursuit, and our army had to detour along through mud and snow.) Our advance immediately began to feel its way from Winchester toward Strasburgh, in which direction JACKSON had fled, and brisk fights took place daily with Ashby's rebel cavalry, while a portion of BANKS' command pushed forward and passed over the railroad to Mansfield—making our first communication with that point from this direction since the region fell into rebel hands. Gen. BANKS himself seeing that the rebels were flying out of the valley, opened the Strasburgh, preparatory, it was said, to establishing his headquarters at Fairfax Court-house, and operating in another direction. While these movements were being made the rebel force had retired a few miles below Strasburgh, JACKSON, imagining now that nearly our entire army had left the valley, came out from his covert and passed through Strasburgh toward Winchester, for the purpose of devouring the small National force he thought is be at that point. He attacked our outposts on Saturday, the 23d, and on the subsequent day advanced upon us with an army ten or twelve thousand strong. Gen. SHIELDS—who, in the temporary absence of BANKS, was in command—was prepared for that very event, and suddenly sprung upon the rebels with his whole division, and gained the very important victory of Winchester. In the meantime Gen. BANKS had come up, and next morning gave the rebels chase, and did not stop till he had reached a point five miles beyond Strasburgh, where he had to call on account of destroyed tracks and bridges. The pursuit was a terrible one for the enemy, and his loss was estimated by the Commanding Officer at 500 killed and 1,000 wounded, besides the demoralization and almost complete breaking up of this division of the rebel army.

On the 1st of April, Gen. BANKS had things ready for continuing the pursuit of the enemy, and, by this time, JACKSON, also, had again succeeded in getting his force in some sort of fighting trim. BANKS advanced toward Woodstock, the rebel cavalry disputing every foot of ground, and rendering pursuit almost impossible by their destruction of bridges. On the 2d he reached Edinburg, seventeen miles from Strasburgh, where he had some sharp skirmishing with JACKSON's rearguard, while the main rebel body retreated upon New-Market. BANKS was there delayed some time building a bridge; but, on the 16th he made a sudden movement upon New-Market, occupied the railroad terminus, and from there marched to New-Market, fighting his way with artillery, and capturing many prisoners. The enemy attempted to make a stand, but, having his flank open, soon effected a hasty retreat. On the 19th the snows were gone,

THE MOUNTAIN DEPARTMENT.

A Nest of Guerrillas Broken Up in Randolph County.

[illegible]

Day before yesterday a body of our troops from the Fifth Virginia, with a detachment of Connecticut Cavalry, Capt. [illegible], under Lieut.-Col. LAIDMAN, of the Fifth Virginia, surprised a guerrilla band on Shaft's Mountain, Randolph County, and completely routed them in disorder, capturing everything left in the hurry of flight—guns, camp equipage, drum, and wounding a number.

AN OFFICIAL REPORT.

HEADQUARTERS MOUNTAIN DEPARTMENT, Sunday, May 25, 1862.

Col. LAIDMAN, commanding the expedition to Shaft Mountain, reports that he completely routed a large band of the "Rebel Guerrillas," putting them to flight and capturing most of their camp, with not loss on our side. The pursuit was continued till the band is entirely broken up.

Proposal of Col. Allen to Raise a New Rangers.

[illegible]

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Will you accord to me the use of your columns in the emergency issue, announcing the fact, that owing to the pressing necessity of the Government, and my ability to respond to it, by raising for instant service a full regiment of men who have seen service in the field, but who are averse to forming companies to fill quotas contrary to the call of the State, thinking that I may be to be their commanding officer, that I have made arrangements to raise and place in the field within ten days, a new command, to be known as the Stanton Legion.

The books of enrollment will be opened on the 29th inst., at Central Hall, Grand-street, opposite Tompkins Market, and the men will be mustered for service on the 31 day of June next, at the City Armory, corner of White and Elm streets.

This command will in no way conflict with the Governor's call, but is simply intended to meet a requirement of the Government, [illegible]

Very respectfully yours, WM. H. ALLEN,
Late Colonel First Regiment [illegible].

The Weekly Averages of the Banks of the City of New-York, on Saturday, May 24, 1862, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous exhibit of May 17:

Increase in Loans	$822,068
Increase in Specie	$54,658
Increase in Undrawn Deposits	2,508,133

including the Clearing-house operations of the week, which show the inter-exchanges between the Banks, and including also the Sub-Treasury average of the week, the following is the general comparison with the previous exhibit, and also with the movement this time last month:

	May 24, 1862.	May 24, 1862.	May 17, 1862.
Capital	$60,787,000	$60,651,500	$60,651,500
Loans	116,141,806	116,022,149	115,200,082
Specie	20,025,791	20,072,700	20,230,607
Circulation	5,705,928	5,692,078	5,690,321
Gross Deposits	137,527,495	146,497,625	147,022,571
Exchanges	15,022,546	22,904,701	27,608,343
Undrawn	21,234,676	122,022,924	120,029,020
Due to Sub-Treasury	6,686,008	13,016,360	15,126,709

The Bank return, as anticipated in our weekly review of this morning, shows a large increase in the line of Deposits, and a higher average in Specie. The Loans and Discounts are also up, though not in proportion to the Deposits, while the Circulation is partially lower than last week. The market for Money was undisturbed by the adverse War advices, and loans at call were again offered the brokers at 4@5 ⅌ cent. The Government is paying 4 ⅌ cent. on deposits left with the Treasury in this City for thirty days or over. The price of Gold advanced to 104 ⅌ cent. on the War news, and Exchange on London followed up to 114½@115 ⅌ cent. in sympathy, although only a moderate business is thus far reported for the Boston mail of Wednesday.

The Stock Market this forenoon manifested less of the panic feeling incident to bad news than was generally anticipated. Of course, a general decline was looked for, and the fact that every one came into the Street prepared for a serious reaction, may have led to the contrary result, as a considerable number of orders to buy at lower figures undoubtedly came into the Street. The difference from Saturday afternoon on Government Securities, at the early Board, was ¼ ⅌ cent.; on New-York Central, ¼ ⅌ cent.; on Erie, ¼ ⅌ cent.; on Erie Preferred, 1 ⅌ cent.; on the Western Roads, ½@1 ⅌ cent. After the adjournment, on the Street the market was steady, and at the Second Board prices recovered ½@¾ ⅌ cent., and a well distributed business was done. Later in the afternoon the general market was stronger and at 4½ o'clock P. M. the following prices were current on the Street, the average decline from Saturday afternoon being about ½@¾ ⅌ cent.:

N. Y. Central	87	Pacific	112

There was very little said on the Street, today, in reference to the Indians fraud. The prevalent conclusion is that the State authorities were as culpable, in concealing the wrong, as STOVER, the late transfer agent, was criminal in committing it. So far as the public at large are concerned, no serious damage is likely to ensue, although the case might have resulted very differently but for the ability of parties in Wall-street, to whom the fraudulent certificates were pledged, to retire them from the market.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The response to the new and unexpected call for troops has been all that the Government could require, and more than it could have foreseen. In answer to a dispatch from Secretary STANTON, the Seventh Regiment, National Guard, Col. LEFFERTS, left for Washington last evening. Never was so much enthusiasm shown at the departure of any regiment. The march down Broadway was a complete triumph, and must have gladdened the hearts of the brave fellows as they passed. The Second Regiment of artillery, Col. GRAHAM, also left yesterday for Washington, amidst the cheering of the people. Still other regiments are to follow to-day and to-morrow, including the gallant Sixty-ninth, already celebrated in the annals of the war. Some eight or ten regiments will probably leave this City and Brooklyn in the course of the week. The response from other States is no less gratifying, as will be seen from our dispatches this morning.

Our advices from Gen. McDOWELL'S Army are highly important. A dispatch published in this City yesterday, announced that it was falling back from Fredericksburgh to Washington. On the contrary, it has crossed the Rappahannock in full force, and the advance was yesterday eight miles beyond Fredericksburgh, on one road, and five or six miles on another. The rebels from the surrounding hills were of course able to see the movement, and in their retreat they destroyed the bridges behind them—which will, of course, tend to delay Gen. McDOWELL'S progress somewhat. A reconnoissance was yesterday made by the General in person, which revealed the presence of no rebels; and no indications were found of their having been in the vicinity in any force.

A dispatch from Gen. BANKS to the War Department, dated at Williamsport yesterday morning, announced that his whole force, trains and all, would probably cross in safety. Although the labor of the night before had been fearful, the men were in fine spirits, and crossing the Potomac in good order. The enemy, he announced, had followed him during the night, but was invisible in the morning, and he expressed his belief that he had given up the pursuit, and was anxiously seeking his own safety. An explanation is afforded in a later dispatch, from our Washington correspondent, who announces that the advance of the enemy is stayed, and his retreat probably cut off. In the absence of definite knowledge of the measures taken by the Government to effect this object, it is impossible at present to indicate how it is to be done. There is no doubt, however, of the present safety of Gen. BANKS, and later news may possibly develop the plans of the War Department.

The excitement in Baltimore was renewed again yesterday, and continued with more or less intensity throughout the day. The crowd again amused themselves by chasing supposed Secessionists through the streets, until all of that class had entirely disappeared. A demand for the display of flags was then made, and was very generally complied with. A recruiting office was opened, which displayed a flag bearing the inscription, "Recruiting Office, First Maryland Avengers."

We have this morning quite full particulars of the defeat of Col. KENLY'S command at Front Royal, from a Captain of the First Maryland Regiment who was engaged. The National troops appear to have been taken almost entirely by surprise, about the first intimation of the presence of a rebel force being an attack from them. Our troops defended themselves as well as they could against overwhelming odds, and an enemy apparently determined to give no quarter. It is positively asserted that the rebels carried a black flag on this occasion.

Another nest of guerrillas has been broken up in the Mountain Department—on Sheff's Mountain, in Randolph County. An expedition under Col. LAZEAR surprised them, put them to flight, and captured most of their guns and all their camp, equipage, etc.

The steamer Suwanee, which sailed from Philadelphia on Saturday for New-Orleans, carried out a very large cargo, consisting principally of 50 kegs, shoulders, 25 hhds. sides, 102 hhds. bagged hams, 104 bbls. and 161 kegs lard, 1,234 boxes of soap, 823 of candles, 23 of smoked tongues, 77 cheese, 3,000 of herring, 100 bbls. mackerel, 100 vinegar, 25 cases shoes and hats, beside medical stores.

FROM EUROPE.

We have advices four days later from Europe, by steamship Kangaroo, which passed Cape Race late on Saturday night. The news of the capture of New-Orleans had been received in England by the Canada, and confirmed by the City of New-York, which arrived at Liverpool shortly before the Kangaroo left. It occasioned much surprise, and at first was received with considerable doubt. It seems to have had very little effect on the cotton market, though the impression in Manchester was that it would tempt the rebels to make the most their, under the previous assurance of our Government that measures would be taken to mitigate the blockade. The London Times considers the capture a hard blow for the South, and a great triumph for the North, and says it is vain to deny the importance of the event—at the same time still doubting the ability of the Government to conquer the rebellion. Even the London Herald, though at first doubting the truth of the report taken over by the Canada, admits it to be a signal triumph; while the Ministerial Post, admitting a serious loss to the South, professes to think it will not seriously affect the fortunes of either party. Speculations relative to the visit of Count MERCIER to Richmond continued, but nothing reliable had transpired. Parliamentary proceedings had been generally unimportant. There is nothing of interest from the Continent. The Liverpool Cotton Market was irregular, and prices were ⅛d. lower for American breadstuffs, and provisions were dull. Consols, 93¼ for money.

Advices one day later than by the Kangaroo are received by the Hibernian, which passed Cape Race on Sunday morning, on her way to Quebec. There is nothing by this arrival of special importance. The Government had been defeated in the House of Commons, on the proposition to abolish the Church rates, by a decided majority. A still further decline had taken place in American cotton, and breadstuffs and provisions continued dull. Consols had advanced to 93¾.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, a memorial was presented from citizens of Southwest Missouri, asking protection from guerrilla bands. The bill legalizing the acceptance of 200,000 more troops was reported back from the Military Committee. A resolution was offered by Mr. SUMNER, and laid over, asking the Secretary of War for copies of all instructions to Generals, in pursuance of the Act of August, 1861, freeing slaves employed against the United States. Another resolution, presented by Mr. SUMNER, declaring that the Government should call upon all, without distinction of color, to help put down the rebellion, was also laid over. Mr. SUMNER also introduced a bill to relieve the National Government from all obligation to support Slavery. It is intended as amendatory of the Fugitive Slave law. A bill was introduced to aid in restoring order and to preserve the public peace in insurrectionary districts. It was referred. In response to a remark of Mr. DAVIS, of Kentucky, deprecating the policy of weakening Gen. BANKS, so as to leave him to be whipped by the rebels, Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, said the President was entirely responsible for all orders for the arrest of Gen. McDOWELL'S progress toward Richmond, and for the withdrawal of troops from Gen. BANKS. He stated further, that it was done in anticipation of just such a movement as had taken place, and that the President's policy was completely vindicated. The Tax bill was then taken up and debated until the adjournment.

In the House, consideration of the Confiscation bill was resumed, and Mr. ELIOT, of Massachusetts, closed the general debate. Mr. ROSCOE CONKLING'S amendment, providing that only the property of those persons who hold office under the rebel Government shall be confiscated, was adopted, 150 to 50. The substitutes proposed by Messrs. MAYNARD, of Tennessee, and MERRILL, of Vermont, were rejected. A direct vote was then taken on the bill, and it passed, 82 to 68. The House then proceeded to the consideration of the bill reported from the Select Committee to free from servitude the slaves of rebels. Various amendments and substitutes were proposed and rejected, and the House finally voted on the bill precisely as it came from the Special Committee. It was rejected, 72 to 74. The House then passed the Senate bill for the relief of the pilot of the steamer Plaster and his associates, and adjourned.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday completed the details of the ordinance appropriating an additional half million of dollars for the relief of families of volunteers, which was passed without opposition. The Comptroller is to be Treasurer of the fund as hitherto, and the manner of the distribution, and the sums allotted to the participants, are not materially different from the last ordinance.

The Board of Councilmen held their regular meeting yesterday. A petition was presented for the appointment as surgeons and physicians to the Soldiers' Hospital of the medical gentlemen who have from the first acted in such capacity. A resolution was offered donating to the Ladies' Relief Association all of the building now used by them, a portion of it being now occupied by the Northeastern Dispensary. It created much discussion, Mr. JONES strongly advocating the resolution, backed by a very urgent appeal from Mrs. Dr. MARVIN, the friends of the Dispensary being represented by Mr. BABCOCK and Mr. STEVENSON. No final action was, however, had, the paper being laid over. A resolution was introduced, and referred, to pave Broadway with Belgian pavement, from Twenty-third to Forty-ninth-street. With the exception of the above, the proceedings were routine and unimportant.

The crew of the English steamer Bermuda, which was captured while trying to run the blockade, have arrived at Philadelphia, where they will be detained as witnesses until the case of the vessel shall come up for adjudication.

SOLOMON STURGES, the well-known Chicago steamboat man and capitalist, has become insane, and a writ of de lunatico inquirendo has been granted in his case. The Chicago Tribune says: "The incipiency of the malady was largely owing to the deep and intense interest which he manifested in the overthrow of the rebellion, and the vigorous prosecution of the war. We understand that he will be removed for a time from the scene of his business, to an Eastern retreat, and it is hoped that quiet and freedom from mental care will restore him to his wonted activity of mind."

Capt. HAMILTON L. BOONE and Col. WALTER SCOTT, both notorious Jayhawkers, have succeeded in escaping from the military prison in St. Louis. Capt. BOONE was a desperate character, and had before made two unsuccessful efforts to gain his freedom.

A dispatch received at the army headquarters in St. Louis says: "Assassins are prowling about Little Red River, Ark. One of the Union soldiers, bathing in that river, was shot and beaten to death with clubs. Such villians will not be taken as prisoners."

A number of interesting decisions in criminal and other cases were rendered at General Term of the Supreme Court yesterday.

The Stock Exchange was less unsettled by the adverse army news of yesterday than generally anticipated. The absence of everything like a panic feeling was quite marked. At the close the average decline from Saturday was found to be only ⅛@¼ ⅌ cent. Gold rose to 103½@104; Exchange to 114½@115 ⅌ cent.

Breadstuffs were freely purchased, yesterday, at slightly improved prices, though the market closed rather tamely. Cotton was in active request, and was decidedly dearer. Sugars, St. Domingo Coffee, Tallow, Hay and Whisky were in good demand. A fair inquiry prevailed for Hops, Sole Leather, Linseed Oil and Spirits Turpentine. The Freight engagements were moderate, at reduced rates. Other branches of trade presented no really new feature.

The cattle trade at Forty-fourth-street was quite animated Monday morning, but dull in the afternoon; butchers holding back for delayed cattle trains on the Erie road. A burned bridge at Lonesboro on this road kept all the stock trains back until Monday P. M., when twenty-nine cars came in, but over 1,000 cattle are still behind, which are expected this morning. Prices are nearly unchanged, the best cattle selling at 8¼c., and fair steers at 8c., with indications of a lower market to-day. Including a few small lots sold on Saturday, the offerings up to Monday night were over 3,200, and if the remaining stock gets in the supply will be ample for all demands.

Affairs at Washington—Rebel Movements in Virginia.

We have no very definite information concerning the military action of the Government. Rumors which seem to be well founded, however, confirm the view which we took yesterday of recent events in Virginia. One dispatch states that "the officers of the Government were not unprepared for the advance of JACKSON upon BANKS, and have taken steps accordingly." As a matter of course, they must have known, when they took away from BANKS 15,000 men, leaving him less than half that number, that they exposed him to attack and defeat from the enemy in his front. We can only hope that the country is to have compensation for this disaster in something brilliant and effective to be done by McDOWELL. It is reported that it was upon his express demand that BANKS' troops were sent to him, and that his reason for asking them was the fear that he was to be at once attacked by the forces in front of him. If this was so, it only proves that he was mistaken as to the point of the rebel assault. Generals who simply lie still and await an attack, at the discretion of the enemy, are quite liable to these minor mistakes of judgment.

A report was published here yesterday afternoon, which induced a good deal of public excitement, that McDOWELL, also, had been compelled by the rebels to retreat from his position opposite Fredericksburgh, and that he and his whole army were making the best time possible to Washington. When it is considered that McDOWELL has now over forty thousand men under his command—a much greater force than the rebels could bring against him without abandoning Richmond and being exposed to immediate pursuit from McCLELLAN, and that they had no means of getting to Falmouth but by a long, circuitous, and almost impossible march—the absurdity of the rumor will be apparent. We learn, moreover, by our special dispatches from Fredericksburgh this morning, that instead of making an inglorious retreat from an imaginary foe, McDOWELL'S column, on Sunday night, crossed the Rappahannock to Fredricksburgh, which, up to this time, had been only nominally occupied; and that, from the latter point, he has now extended his lines eight miles in the direction of Richmond—the few rebels in his front retreating before him. A reconnoissance made by Gen. McDOWELL himself, yesterday, for a distance of fifteen miles on the Richmond railroad, revealed no rebels at all on the line, and no indications were found of their having been there in any force. A small body ought now to be sufficient to defend the Rappahannock; the tens of thousands of loyal Militia pouring into Washington from every State in the Union, ought to render safe that uneasy place; and McDOWELL would still be left with an army sufficient to prevent JACKSON'S retreat, on the hand, and to operate in the rear of Richmond, on the other.

The idea seems to be industriously encouraged that the rebels are assuming the offensive, and are invading the Northern States. It seems to be assumed that JACKSON intends to cross the Potomac and march into Maryland,—that EWELL is pushing towards FREMONT for the purpose of overpowering him and marching upon Pittsburgh! The cry has been raised at Washington, and is rhetorically echoed by the Governor of Massachusetts, that the Capital is again endangered, and elaborate articles are written to show that the rebels have abandoned the seaboard, and that they now intend, for the sake of obtaining subsistence, to carry the war into Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, and the heart of the Northern and Western States! This is utterly preposterous and puerile. The rebels have certainly abandoned the seaboard, but it was not from any profound strategy, but simply because they were compelled to do so. They were driven off by our armies and gunboats. One by one they have been forced to surrender every stronghold which gave them access to the sea. They fell back upon the interior from absolute compulsion. As to invading the North, they would like it, no doubt,—but they might as well talk of invading the Arctic Zone. There is not a solitary district of any State through which they would have to pass where the militia alone would not drive them back. Every fifty miles would decimate their forces. It is very easy to talk about marching into Illinois, or Ohio, or Pennsylvania; but to do it is quite another thing.

Their regular armies, moreover, have enough to do at home. To withdraw them from the South for such a purpose, is simply to abandon the South to the National arms and to send their troops into Northern prisons. The rebels may be desperate enough to meditate such projects, but they are not mad enough to attempt to put them in execution.

This movement of JACKSON is an episode in the war which will have no important result, unless it leads to some gross mistake on the part of our Government. The call for fresh troops from the North will do no harm, except as it may create a temporary alarm, which, moreover, a few days will dissipate. It will enable the Government to release 20,000 soldiers from garrison duty at Washington and its vicinity, and send them to aid McDOWELL in some brilliant and important service which, we trust, he is destined to perform. The rebels, having driven BANKS across the Potomac, will hold the valley of the Shenandoah, which he had reclaimed for the Union, just as long as the Secretary of War chooses to have them, and no longer. But they certainly will make no attempt to cross the Potomac, or to invade Pennsylvania. McCLELLAN, meantime, will take Richmond, and will then be in position to cut off the retreat, and take captive every rebel soldier that may remain in Virginia north of the capital of the State. He will have a force at his disposal sufficient, with judicious coöperation from McDOWELL, to do it, and will obtain easy command of all the railroads leading to the South and West.

We would not depreciate the importance of the disaster which has overtaken Gen. BANKS. It is very mortifying in itself, will give great encouragement to the rebels, and will expose the Union men of the valley of the Shenandoah to grievous persecution, from which our Government should have protected them. But beyond this it will have no serious results. It will not affect in the least the general progress of the campaign, nor can it delay materially the inevitable overthrow of the rebellion.

The Retreat from Winchester—Why Southern Unionists are Scarce.

To the first of the tidings from Gen. BANKS' reaching the country on Sunday, we doubtless owe an escape from the wild panic the first impression of such a disaster was calculated to excite. Time was given for a second thought; and reflection soon showed that the effort of the enemy was simply a throe of dissolution—a spasm preceding that final collapse which must certainly render further movement impossible. Some demonstration was needed to restore the shattered morale of the forces before Richmond and Corinth. The gloom resulting from constant defeat and reverse was to be for an instant dissipated by a gleam of success. It was not impossible that, under the excitement of a reported victory, the army of JOHNSTON might be encouraged to give Gen. McCLELLAN battle in front of Richmond, and so save the mortification of losing the Confederate capital without a blow. BANKS was known to have only a handful of men in his command. To make a dash at his column, pursue it up the valley, drive it into Maryland, and then retire before McDOWELL, or SUMNER or FREMONT could close in behind them and cut off their retreat, was doubtless the rebel policy. An impression of this sort became general in this City as soon as the news had been fairly digested. It was seen that no material advantage was lost. The rebels gained nothing but the fame of a barren victory. The pieces on the National chess-board held their squares—only the pawns had moved. Washington was not endangered. An invasion of Maryland was out of the question. And so public apprehension passed away; that acute index of popular opinion, the Stock Market, wavered only momentarily, and then recovered its tone. Whatever abatement there was of the general confidence, had reference to the War Department alone.

Free as the business fortunately is of any direct advantage to the rebels, there is one way in which it will do them yeoman service. Every foot of territory we take from and subsequently abandon to the enemy, is an incalculable damage to the Union cause. When Gen. BANKS penetrated the Shenandoah Valley, the presence of his ample force encouraged and developed that sentiment of loyalty previously repressed and nearly crushed out by rebel terrorism. The population came forward and attested their fidelity to the Government, gave shelter and aid to our troops, furnished the advancing column with supplies and necessaries which had been carefully concealed from the retreating insurgents. Every proof of sympathy was offered by the Union men of the valley; and these proofs have been carefully recorded by their rebel neighbors, who will be only too prompt to expose the wretched well-doers to the vengeance of the rebel troops. It is indeed a picture too horrible to contemplate, the condition of these people who are now wholly at the mercy of their embittered and pitiless enemies. They may well curse the day when they trusted themselves to the protection of the National arms; and envy those about them who have a clear record of treason to show the legions of JACKSON. What happened at Jacksonville, Florida, through National desertion—the scenes in East Tennessee, which for a year have disgraced the history of the country, simply through National neglect,—are now repeated in the Valley of Virginia, perhaps with exaggerated violence.

With feelings of surprise and disappointment we read in the story of Nashville, Norfolk and New-Orleans captured, of the non-appearance of that Union sentiment, upon the existence of which the nation has counted with confidence. Even where it is known to exist in strength, as in New-Orleans, where, PIERRE SOULE being the witness, it required rigid martial law to repress it, our troops find little or no trace of it. It comes to light slowly, cautiously, somewhat reluctantly. The reason is palpable. The National advance has too many backward steps. The profession of the most flagrant treason, even in the presence of the Union army, exposes no man to danger. The utterance of a loyal aspiration, though safe at the moment, may be made death by the disappearance of the Union forces. The dictate of prudence is to wait until the future is really determined. Declared loyalty gains nothing and risks everything. When the foothold of the National Power shall be everywhere assured, and the possibility of terror again enthroning itself shall be ended, we may expect to hear that strong and eloquent outburst of patriotic loyalty, which we have thus far expected in vain. The events of Saturday and Sunday are certainly not likely to evoke it.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION FROM PARIS.—While the chief European journals do little else than pour out vitriol and vinegar in regard to American affairs, it is gratifying to find occasional instances of a truly liberal and appreciative spirit. We find a marked example of the kind in the Paris Presse of the 7th inst., one of the ablest of the Parisian journals, and since M. GIRARDIN assumed its editorship, conspicuous for its just and intelligent judgments on American affairs. It thus takes to task those French and English journals whose secessionist sympathies blind them to the broadest and most palpable facts:

"There are certain journalists whom the events of the past few months in the United States have taught no lesson. History has no example of a Government surprised as was that of the United States by a conspiracy long concocted by the very men to whom the nation had confided its guidance, maintaining itself and triumphing over its aggressors, while at the same time respecting the Constitution so completely. Obliged to create everything—armies, finances, administration—Mr. LINCOLN, seconded by the energy of the American people, has been able in less than a year to repel the attacks of those who wished to destroy the unity of the Republic. The rebels announced in 1861 that in less than a month they would be in possession of the Capital of the Union; Washington was to have been occupied by the 1st of April of last year; and, indeed, it seemed as though nothing could prevent the accomplishment of this threat. And yet Washington has not been taken in the whole course of the year, while on the contrary, the rebel forces have been compelled to beat a retreat without having ever attempted an attack. Driven, as they have been, from Kentucky, from Missouri, from Tennessee, routed everywhere, compelled to concentrate all their force in two great bodies, all that the Federals need now do, if they wish to avoid bloodshed, is simply not to attack, and the rebels will be compelled to surrender at great of a famine, utterly exhausted and unable to do, by certain journals, pay, with no energy and greater than ever."

Business Before Congress.

Congress has taken to itself premonitions of early dissolution, evening sessions and short speeches. The modern method of compensating (as far as a mere mercenary return can repay) the inestimable services of these National lawgivers, by a fixed salary instead of by a per diem, has this effect, that the business of governing the country never lags; nor is the Annual Session extended a day beyond the earliest feasible for an adjournment. To such extent, indeed, is this alacrity carried, that measures of the highest public moment are too apt to be scantily and only partially considered, in the haste of the Members to reach their homes and enjoy the well-earned laudations of an admiring constituency. It was different, indeed, under the old system. The Thirty-First Congress had in its hands the Compromise measures of 1850, and receiving eight dollars a-day per head, never thought of adjourning until September 30—two months before the commencement of the short Session. But the present Congress, with tenfold more business upon its calendar, business, the importance of which has no parallel in the antecedent history of the Nation, is quite willing to be released by the middle of June, whatever at that time may be the requirements of public welfare. Such, at least, appears to be its present temper. We shall be happy to note any proof of amendment.

The principal measures still awaiting legislative action and concurrence are these:

1. The Tax bill. The Senate, controlled by Constitutional scruples, has not effected that radical change in the House bill which the country had anticipated. Instead of sweeping away the entire clumsy and costly structure fabricated by the House Committee of Ways and Means, and substituting the more productive, less oppressive, and infinitely cheaper plan proposed by the Boston Board of Trade and the New-York Chamber of Commerce, it has contented itself with tinkering the bill of the House, introducing a few ameliorations, and scoring out a multitude of defects. The bill is still a monstrosity. If, instead of yet further patching, Congress would substitute the bill of Mr. HAGNEY, time would be saved, and the foundation of a revenue system, commensurate with the present needs and future expenses of the Government, would be laid. It is to be feared that the simple machinery of the Haight plan, dispensing as it does with legions of new officers, and consequently with the patronage which accrues to the members of Congress from the other machinery, is not without influence in recommending the latter.

2. The Confiscation bill. As the Tax bill falls principally upon the loyal States, the Confiscation bill is designed to make the rebel communities pay their share of the expense they have wantonly caused, while it also inflicts upon them the merited penalty of their transgression. The difficulty with this class of measures is that they are too nearly akin to ex post facto laws, and may, therefore, be extinguished by a decision of the Supreme Court; that experience shows confiscated property rarely to yield any appreciable return to the State; and that the adoption of a stringent measure will tend to exasperate the insurgent population beyond all reconcilable bounds. On the other hand, the impolicy of permitting the guilty to go unpunished is admitted by those who are most fastidious about the means of inflicting a penalty. These offending people must not be encouraged in the belief that treason, the highest of crimes, has the warrant of legal impunity; and quite as carefully should they be taught that the position of their neighbors, who have remained faithful to the Union, and whose fidelity has exposed them to imprisonment, exile and death, is less desirable than their own. The Government is bound to distinguish between the loyal and the treasonable. It can only do so by discriminating against the latter through punatory legislation. It is doubtless necessary, therefore, that a confiscation bill shall pass; and if it be carefully guarded, so that the crime shall consist in adhering to the rebel cause after a date hereafter fixed by proclamation, thus avoiding everything in common with ex post facto legislation; and if the friends of a rigorous measure concede enough to the more lenient to insure the passage of even a moderate bill, there is yet hope of timely and salutary action. The bill which yesterday passed the House of Representatives is of this moderate character. Cannot the Senate accept this measure instead of the half-dozen conflicting bills now pending before it?

3. The Pacific Railroad bill passed the House some weeks ago, and has slumbered in the Senate, where there is known to be a decided majority in its favor. The railroad is urgently demanded by the public interest. What with dangers constantly threatening the Isthmian route, just now alive with European war vessels, on a hostile errand, and dangers arising from the revolutionary quarrels in New-Granada; and the assured worthlessness of the neutrality guaranteeing the route, in the presence of the loose doctrines recently expounded to Parliament by Lord PALMERSTON, as to the non-obligation of treaties in a period of war, it must be confessed the water-path to the Pacific has not the security essential for a commercial artery upon which the very life of the country depends. It is also important at this moment, above all others, to bind the Pacific States firmly to the North. Hitherto their demand for the road has been defeated by the antagonism of the South. They now apply to a Congress, controlled by Northern influences, for the construction of an iron link which shall not only bind the Union inseparably together, but carry to the Atlantic States, along with the gold of our own exhaustless fields, the invaluable trade of China, Japan and the Indies. How, with any reference to justice and sound policy the Senate can refuse to pass the House bill, we cannot conjecture.

4. The Bankrupt Law. It seems to be now universally conceded that the House in postponing this measure to the December meeting, was guilty of a very ill-considered bit of injustice. The business surface of the entire France in Mexico—Grounds of Hostile Interventions.

"What excites this extremely spirited French intervention, is not that it is monarchical, but simply it but too well understood. It is tending to a complete conquest of it, the reorganization of Mexico on a stable and independent basis is foreseen, and with it, the re-establishment of the Republic beyond the reach of that covetousness which has already ruined it for the advantage of the United States. While allowing to hope that Government to other nations the blessings of the republican principle, our eyes have been opened to the easy prey which was thought to be already within practicable grasp. This is the secret of the outburst of generous indignation which has carried away the Times and its contributors. Let their favorite tears deceive nobody. Are lamentations to-day over the Mexican expedition, which no one threatens, consistent with many efforts of yesterday to destroy that very nationality?

Thus far the Courrier des États Unis is at present the only champion on this side of the ocean of the French policy toward Mexico. It is only, perhaps, because its cause is desperate that no auxiliaries can be had.

We do not care to say the Courrier has wilfully substituted falsehood for truth. It is proper, however, to say that no word of truth is to be found in its attribution of motives to this paper, and generally to the American Press in regard to Mexican matters. Conquest in that quarter is certainly no part of a sound American policy; and territorial acquisition by purchase has never found favor with the American Press and people. Now and again, when inconsiderate or designing people have suggested measures which looked to the spoliation of Mexico, the Press for their and Congress for the people have united in setting the most emphatic seal of disapprobation upon the plan; and it has found no interest at the South or at the North willing to promote it.* No better illustration of this point could be found than the fate of Mr. BUCHANAN'S famous recommendations with regard to Chihuahua and Sonora. It fell dead with the utterance; and yet, had the lust of territory exerted any influence over our people, there was never a period when the acquisition of all that might be thought desirable was easier than during the four years of Mr. BUCHANAN'S administration. The only difficulty lay in the indisposition of our people to diminish the territory or impair the sovereignty of the neighboring Republic. As this is notoriously the loyal attitude of this nation, it devolves upon the Courrier to bring something more than unsustained imputations to disprove it.

In truth, what our French contemporary would conceal from sight, is the real source of American disquietude, namely, the new and aggressive policy of the Imperial Government. Had this manifested itself by a similar interference with the internal affairs of an independent European State, we cannot doubt that a concurrence of the remaining Great Powers would have interposed to check it. Greater forbearance can only be expected here, because the nation is prolongued with a domestic disorder perilling its very life. France is in Mexico upon the most shameless of pretenses. It justifies itself by alleging debts which the Liberal Government declines to liquidate. All just dues were provided for by the preliminaries of Soledad. It points to the protection demanded by French citizens residing in the Republic. The French citizens residing in the Republic unite in a protest against the French invasion, declaring the Juarez Administration to be thoroughly representative of the people and conservative of public order. It purposes to reinvigorate popular sovereignty and restore religious freedom and the national prosperity. In its van is the chief of a party whom the Mexicans expelled from the country, almost unanimously; the agent of a bigotry which Mexico, like France, has resolutely declined to tolerate; the forged evidences of debt, which the State never incurred, but which, with the cost of this iniquitous war, the French propose to collect before they evacuate the country. Not merely, therefore, because France is violating public law and order, turning civilization backward, and so forsaking the grand mission the French arrogate to themselves, but because in doing so they bear to the earth a neighbor and ally; because they violate a doctrine held prescriptively to be the only guarantee of American independence; and because, by the same warrant which France urges in the case of Mexico, she may with equal right interfere in our difficulties, we object to and protest against her present policy. We are thus explicit, in order that the Courrier may no longer have a shade of excuse for its libels upon American sentiment.

THE DEPARTURE OF THE SEVENTH REGIMENT.—At ten o'clock last night the Seventh Regiment marched down Broadway, and took its departure for Washington. The same patriotic alacrity that placed that pet New-York corps in the van of the great movement which, a year ago, poured to the defence of the Capital, makes it once more first to respond to the summons for the services of our State militia.

It can hardly have been possible for each member to avoid mentally contrasting the night march down Broadway with that other departure a year ago. A body of men, having so many bonds of relationship and affection with the population of our City, could

THE KANGAROO OFF CAPE RACE.

What is Thought in England of the Capture of New-Orleans.

The Importance of the Triumph Conceded.

Speculations as to its Effect on the Cotton Supply.

VIEWS OF THE LONDON TIMES.

A Slight Decline in American Cotton.—Breadstuffs and Provisions Dull.—Consols 93 1-4.

CAPE RACE, Sunday, May 25.

The steamship Kangaroo, from Liverpool 14th, and Queenstown 15th inst., passed Cape Race at 11 o'clock Saturday night, and was boarded by the Press Newsboat.

The steamship Canada, from Boston and Halifax, arrived out on the 11th.

The steamship City of New-York, from New-York, arrived out on the 14th.

The steamship Bohemian, from Portland, arrived out on the 14th.

The Kangaroo has 47 cabin and 573 steerage passengers. She experienced head winds throughout the passage.

The news of the capture of New-Orleans, received per Canada, was the occasion of much surprise and considerable disbelief; but coming from Southern sources, it was generally argued there was no room for doubt. It produced no influence on the cotton market.

The Times says it is a hard blow for the South, a great triumph for the North; another proof that the North can do more harm to the Confederates than the Confederates can to them. The Times asks how it will affect England. It says the American Ministers at London and Paris are told to assure the Governments that plans are being matured for a mitigation of the blockade, and the promise has been made from time to time in Paris, some weeks past, as we can well understand, with most sincere desire on the part of the National Government to fulfill it. If the Nationals possess New-Orleans, there is, of course, an end to the blockade of that city. There is only one thing wanting, that cotton should come down. If the Southern planters trust it to the Nationals, sufficient will doubtless be got to relieve the manufacturers; but if the obstinate planters remove or destroy the stocks, or refuse to bring them down, it is hard to say what was gained by the capture of New-Orleans. The capture is creditable to the skill of the North, and is also an item in the revenge of the Nationals. But if the city is now to be blockaded on the land side by the Confederates, the Times thinks the gain will not be much by this mitigation of the blockade.

In another article, the Times says it is in vain deny the importance of the event, but if the Southerners mean what they say in their loud talking, which the Times rather questions, they can never be conquered.

The Herald declined to believe this fall, but admits that, if true, it would be a signal triumph for the North.

The Morning Post also doubts it, and thinks, if confirmed, it will not seriously affect the fortunes of either party, although a serious loss to the South. It says the utter hopelessness of the struggle is more apparent at each successive stage.

The Daily News says there is no good reason for doubting the capture, and regards it of great importance. It highly eulogizes the commander skill displayed by the North in this matter.

The news per the City of New-York, received just before the Kangaroo left Liverpool, of course dispelled all doubts. The impression prevailed in Manchester that the event would bring forward some cotton.

It was reported that Count Paissant was suddenly ordered from Paris to London, it is supposed on the mission relative to the steamer Economist, with 600 bales cotton and 400 barrels resin, which arrived at Liverpool from Charleston.

Speculation continued relative to M. Mason's visit to Richmond, but there is nothing reliable. The Opinion Nationale asserts it merely had reference to French tobacco.

Parliamentary proceedings were unimportant.

The distress in Lancashire was debated in the House of Lords without reference to the American affair.

A deputation from the Galway Line waited on PALMERSTON for a restoration of subsidy. PALMERSTON could give no decision, but promised the Government consideration.

The Continental political news is meagre.

The Paris Bourse was firm. Rentes 70f. 90c.

The health of the King of Belgium continues to improve.

Prussia has sent a special Commissioner to Hesse Cassel, and it is reported backed him up with military movements.

STILL LATER FROM EUROPE.

THE HIBERNIAN OFF CAPE RACE.

CAPE RACE, Sunday, May 25.

The steamship Hibernian, from Liverpool May 15, and Londonderry, 16th, bound to Quebec, was boarded off Cape Race at 6 o'clock this (Sunday) morning.

The steamship Teutonic, from New-York, arrived at Southampton the 16th.

The Hibernian had 48 cabin, 200 steerage passengers; all well.

In the House of Commons, 14th, Sir JOHN TRELAWNY moved the second reading of the bill for the abolition of the church rates. After a debate, in which the Conservatives opposed the measure, the House divided amidst the greatest excitement. The bill was lost by a vote of 288 for the second reading, and 289 against—one majority. The result was greeted with vociferous cheers by the Conservatives.

A resolution, offered by Mr. KINNEAR, declaring it unjust and inexpedient to abolish the rates until some other provision was made to supply their place, was carried by 17 majority, amidst enthusiastic Opposition cheers.

The political news from France is unimportant.

The Bourse was heavy; Rentes, 70f. 80c.

The Italian Association of Emancipation had sent the following address to Lord PALMERSTON:

"We have heard with joy and gratitude the words full of meaning which you, expressing the sentiments of the great British nation, have uttered in the House of Commons, in defence of the unity of Italy and the principles of non-intervention. You have recognized the fact of Naples's occupation of Rome to be a flagrant violation of non-intervention. It is the obstacle to the unity of Italy, and threatens the peace of Europe. If England only perseveres in the efforts to make the principle respected, the Italians will energetically move to obtain the deliverance of their country. Receive our respectful salutations.

"The General Council of the Italian Association of Emancipation."

The Spanish Ministerial papers were of the opinion that Gen. PRIM would proceed to Mexico, although the Diario de la Marina has announced the contrary. They also expected he would claim the execution of the Convention of Soledad.

The Duchess de MONTEBELLO had been safely delivered of a son.

THE PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 26.

Mr. HENDERSON, of Missouri, (Union,) presented a memorial from the citizens of Southwest Missouri, asking protection from guerrilla bands.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, (Rep.) from the Military Committee, reported back the bill legalizing the acceptance of 200,000 more troops.

Mr. SUMNER, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) offered a resolution, that the Secretary of War be requested to communicate to the Senate copies of any instructions to Generals, in pursuance of the act of August, 1861, setting free the slaves employed against the United States by their masters; also, to inform the Senate whether any steps have been taken to make that statute effective. Laid over.

Also a resolution that in the prosecution of the present war for the suppression of the present wicked rebellion, the time has come for the Government of the United States to appeal to the loyalty of the whole people, everywhere, especially in the rebel districts, and invite all, without distinction of color or class, to make their loyalty manifest, by ceasing to labor or fight for the rebels, and also to render every assistance in their power to the cause of the Constitution and Government, according to ability, by arms or labor, or any way; and since protection and allegiance are reciprocal duties, it is further the duty of the Government of the United States to maintain all such people in all their rights as men, according to the principles of the Declaration of Independence. Laid over.

Mr. GRIMES, of Iowa, (Rep.,) offered a joint resolution, to compensate the crew of the United States steamer Varuna, for clothing and other property lost in the public service.

Mr. SUMNER introduced a bill to relieve the National Government from all obligation to support Slavery, and of all responsibility for it under the Constitution. The bill provides that, to the end that just relations be established between the Government and the Slave States—first, all acts of Congress, or parts of acts, providing for the rendition of persons escaping from service or labor, are hereby repealed; and there shall be neither Slavery nor involuntary servitude, except for crime, in any territory, forts, dockyards, arsenals, vessels on the high seas, and all places where the National Government has supreme jurisdiction; and all slaves now held or attempted to be held in those places are declared free.

Mr. POMEROY, of Connecticut, (Rep.,) presented the credentials of Hon. JAMES DIXON, re-elected Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. HOWE, of Wisconsin, (Rep.,) introduced a bill to aid in restoring order and preserve the public peace within insurrectionary districts. He referred to the answer of the Mayor of New-Orleans to Capt. FARRAGUT, and of the Mayor of Norfolk to Gen. WOOL, and to various letters, showing a lack of Union feeling at the South, and treason swaggers everywhere, and their armies recruited by decrepit old men, unchristian ministers and malignant women. Treason stands where it can no longer fight, and loyalty implores where it ought to command. The bill was referred.

Mr. DAVIS, of Kentucky, (Union,) referred to Gen. HUNTER's proclamation and to the bad policy of weakening Gen. BANKS so as to leave him to be whipped by the rebels, and said he believed Gen. STANTON took charge of the orders.

Mr. WILSON, of Massachusetts, said the President was entirely responsible for those orders, for the arrest of Gen. McDOWELL's progress toward Richmond, and for the withdrawal of troops from Gen. BANKS. It was done by the President with the approval of the Secretary of War, and several Generals and military men. The President gave a written order that a certain number of men should be left for the defence of Washington, which should be agreed on by the commanders of the different army corps. Twenty thousand of McDOWELL's men were retained and the men withdrawn from Gen. BANKS in anticipation of just such a movement as had then taken place. These orders were devised by the President, and he is entirely responsible.

Mr. TRUMBULL, of Illinois, (Rep.,) said he should like to ask if it was not at the repeated and urgent request of Gen. McCLELLAN that the troops he sent to him.

Mr. WILSON said he understood that Gen. McCLELLAN was very desirous of having Gen. FRENCH, and the President sent a part of Gen. McDOWELL's forces, about one-third, under Gen. FRENCH, to Gen. McCLELLAN. He (Wilson) thought the result of your [illegible] violation of the Proclamation for removing McDowell's force.

The Tax bill was taken up.

The tax on telegraphic dispatches was modified so as to be cents on each order where the cost of the first ten words does not exceed twenty cents, and where the cost of the first ten words exceeds twenty cents, fifteen cents.

The tax on insurance policies was modified so as to be 25 cents on each policy except life insurance.

An amendment was adopted that the act of August 5, 1861, imposing a direct tax of $20,000,000, shall be only held to authorize the collection of one tax of that amount.

This finished the direct consideration of the amendments offered by the Committee on Finance, leaving the bill open for further amendment.

Mr. BRIGHAM moved to amend so as to reduce the tax on lead, linseed and mustard oils, from five cents to two cents per gallon. Agreed to.

Mr. HARRISON, of Missouri, (Union,) moved to strike out 20 cents, and insert 15 on the tax on tobacco, contending that 20 cents was a tax of over 100 per cent. on poor qualities of tobacco.

Pending the motion, adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 26.

The House resumed consideration of the confiscation bill.

Mr. BLAIR, of Massachusetts, (Rep.,) in closing the general debate, remarked that it was a protest—a legal fiction—to say these bills are designed to punish treason. They are designed for no such purpose, but to weaken the power of the enemy, to bring about a speedy and permanent peace. They proposed to take from the enemy the instruments of war, without which they could not carry on the rebellion six months longer.

Mr. NOBLE, of Missouri, (Union,) wished to make a few remarks.

Mr. ELIOT, that gentleman, being a member of the Select Committee, who reported the bill, yielded the floor, but—

Mr. KELLOGGS, of Pennsylvania, (Rep.,) objected to further debate, inasmuch as he was compelled to print his remarks, and had no opportunity to deliver them. Debate here was useless, but our people at home had a right to understand our position on these great questions. His speech would advocate confiscation as a measure of infamy for the past, and as a military necessity for the future. He was against the passage of an abolition enactment. Let Slavery take care of itself. While he stood on the Lincoln platform of compensation and colonization, he was against negro worship and negro legislation per se. He was opposed to negroes swarming in Pennsylvania, and protested against their being supported by Government liberality.

Mr. NOBLE obtained permission to print his remarks.

Mr. ELIOT resumed, explaining and advocating the bills reported from the Committee, and examining the pending substitutes.

The House first voted on ROSCOE CONKLING's amendment to the third and fifth clauses mentioned in the Select Committee's report on the Confiscation bill, whose property is to be confiscated, namely:—Provided that such persons shall have accepted their appointments since the date of the pretended ordinance of Secession, or taken the oath of allegiance to the so-called Confederate States. This amendment referred to any person acting as Governor of State, Member of Convention or Legislature, Judge, or any person hereafter holding any office or agency under the so-called Confederate States.

The amendment was adopted, 150 against 50.

The House next voted on Mr. MAYNARD's substitute, which proposed to punish all persons in any way aiding or abetting the rebellion, by fine and imprisonment, and empowering the President, whenever, in his opinion the public safety may require it, to grant an amnesty, to any or to all offenders within the provisions of this act, excepting only such as having held offices of honor or profit under the Government of the United States, have at any time engaged in the rebellion against its authority, and while so engaged, have borne any office, civil, military or naval.

Mr. MAYNARD's substitute was rejected, 149 to 9.

The substitute of Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, was next voted on. It declares all the estate and property, money, stock, effects and credits of persons acting as officers in any capacity under the so-called Confederate States forfeited, and to be lawful subjects of seizure and of prize and capture wherever found, for indemnity of the United States against the expenses of suppressing the rebellion. The substitute also denationalizes such persons forever, and incapacitates them from voting, or holding any office of profit or trust under the United States of America.

Mr. MORRILL's substitute was rejected 28 against 122.

A vote was taken on the Confiscation bill. It provides to adopt the synopsis as furnished on the 13th of May, adding the following at the end of the fifth class of persons named:

"Provided the persons thirdly and fifthly above described shall have accepted their election or appointments to office since the date of the pretended ordinance of secession of such State, or shall have taken the oath of allegiance to the so-called Confederate States."

The bill passed, 82 against 66, as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Aldrich, Alley, Arnold, Ashley, Babbitt, Baker, Baxter, Bennett, Blair of Pennsylvania, Blake, Brown of Virginia, Buffinton, Campbell, Chamberlain, Clark, Colfax, Frederick A. Conkling, Roscoe Conkling, Cutler, Davis, Duell, Dunn, Edgerton, Edwards, Eliot, Fenton, Fessenden, Frank, Gooch, Goodwin, Gurley, Hickman, Hooper, Hutchins, Julian, Kelley, Kellogg of Michigan, Kellogg of Illinois, Killinger, Lansing, Loomis, Lovejoy, McKnight, McPherson, Mitchell, Morehead, Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, Noell, Olin, Patton, Pike, Pomeroy, Potter, Porter, Rice of Maine, Riddle, Rollins of New-Hampshire, Sargeant, Sedgwick, Shanks, Sloan, Spaulding, Stevens, Stratton, Trimble, Trowbridge, Van Horn, Van Valkenburgh, Verree, Wall, Wallace, Walton of Vermont, Washburne, Wheeler, Whaley, White of Indiana, Wilson, Windom and Worcester.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Ancona, Bailey of Pennsylvania, Biddle, Blair of Virginia, Browne of Rhode Island, Calvert, Clements, Cobb, Corning, Cox, Cravens, Crisfield, Crittenden, Dawes, Delano, Delaplaine, Diven, Dunlap, Dunn, English, Fisher, Granger, Grider, Haight, Hall, Harding, Harrison, Holman, Horton, Johnson, Kerrigan, Knapp, Law, Lazear, Leary, Lehman, Mallory, Maynard, Menzies, Nixon, Noble, Norton, Nugen, Odden, Pike, Pendleton, Perry, Phelps of Missouri, Rice of Massachusetts, Richardson, Robbins, Rollins of Missouri, Segar, Sheffield, Shiel, Smith, Steele of New-York, Steele of New-Jersey, Thomas of Massachusetts, Thomas of Maryland, Train, Vallandigham, Voorhees, Wadsworth, Ward, Webster, Wickliffe, Wood, Woodruff.

The House next proceeded to the consideration of the bill reported from the Select Committee to free from servitude the slaves of rebels engaged in aiding the existing rebellion against the Government of the United States.

Mr. SEDGWICK, of New-York, (Rep.,) had submitted an amendment, making it the duty of every commanding military or naval officer, whose military district shall embrace any portion of the so-called Confederate States, to invite all loyal persons to come within his lines and be enrolled in the service of the United States, to be employed as may be necessary; loyal persons, minor, or married, or women whose slaves shall be thus made free, to be reasonably compensated for their claim to the service or labor of such slaves.

Mr. BLAIR, of Missouri, (Rep.,) proposed an amendment to the above, requiring the freedom of such slaves to be secured by the District Courts, the same making it the duty of the Commissioners in such State to take charge of all persons liberated under the provisions of this act, and hold them for military service, or bind or indenture them as apprentices to loyal proprietors of land or to mechanics, for a term of years, and authorizing the President to acquire lands in Mexico, Central America, South America, or in the islands of the Gulf of Mexico for colonizing them.

Mr. BLAIR's amendment was rejected, 52 against 92.

Mr. SEDGWICK's amendment was rejected by

YEAS—Messrs. Aldrich, Babbitt, Baker, Beaman, Blair of Pennsylvania, Blake, Hamilton, Clark, Davis, Duell, Edgerton, Eliot, Fessenden, Frank, Hickman, Hutchins, Julian, Lansing, Lovejoy, Morrill of Maine, Pike, Porter, Rice of Maine, Rollins of New-Hampshire, Riddle, Sedgwick, Sloan, Trowbridge, Van Valkenburgh, Walton of Vermont, Wilson, Windom.

The negative vote was 116.

Mr. WALTON, of Vermont, (Rep.,) proposed as a substitute for the original bill, providing death for the crime of treason on conviction, and all slaves of the criminal, if any, shall be declared free; or he shall be imprisoned for not less than five years, and fined not less than $10,000, in lieu of death. Persons hereafter inciting or aiding the rebellion be punished by forfeiture of all personal property, and forever disqualified from holding office under the United States, &c.

Mr. WALTON's substitute was rejected, 20 against 121.

Mr. MORRILL, of Vermont, offered an amendment in the nature of a substitute for the original bill, providing forever free from servitude the slaves of rebels engaged in abetting the existing rebellion against the Government of the United States. Any person so declared free, if thereafter seized or molested in any way by any person, using a claim to such person's service or labor, shall be forthwith discharged on habeas corpus by any Court of the United States; and the Court or Judge acting on said writ shall commit for trial for kidnapping the person so holding the said freedman; and on conviction of seizing or holding the said freedman, knowing him to have been declared free by a Court of the United States, the person so convicted shall be sentenced to be confined in the Penitentiary for not less than one nor more than five years; and any one swearing falsely in any proceeding under this act shall be guilty of perjury, and thereon conviction to the penalties thereof.

Mr. MORRILL's substitute was rejected, 16 to 123.

The affirmative are Messrs. Roscoe Conkling, Dunn, Frank, Goodwin, Killinger, Loomis, McKnight, Morrill, Nixon, Olin, Patton, Phelps of California, Porter, Stratton, Walton of Vermont, Worcester.

The House vote was on the bill exactly as it was reported from the Select Committee.

The bill was rejected—74 against 72—as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Aldrich, Alley, Arnold, Ashley, Babbitt, Baker, Baxter, Beaman, Blair of Pennsylvania, Blake, Brown of Virginia, Buffinton, Campbell, Chamberlain, Clark, Colfax, Frederick A. Conkling, Roscoe Conkling, Cutler, Davis, Duell, Dunn, Edgerton, Edwards, Eliot, Fenton, Fessenden, Frank, Gooch, Gurley, Hickman, Hooper, Hutchins, Julian, Kellogg of Michigan, Kellogg of Illinois, Killinger, Lansing, Loomis, Lovejoy, McKnight, McPherson, Mitchell, Morehead, Morrill of Maine, Morrill of Vermont, Noell, Olin, Patton, Pike, Pomeroy, Potter, Porter, Rice of Maine, Riddle, Rollins of New-Hampshire, Sargeant, Sedgwick, Shanks, Sloan, Spaulding, Stevens, Stratton, Trimble, Trowbridge, Van Horn, Van Valkenburgh, Verree, Wall, Wallace, Walton of Vermont, Washburne, Wheeler, Whaley, White of Indiana, Wilson, Windom and Worcester.

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Ancona, Bailey of Pennsylvania, Biddle, Blair of Virginia, Browne of Rhode Island, Calvert, Clements, Cobb, Corning, Cox, Cravens, Crisfield, Crittenden, Dawes, Delano, Delaplaine, Diven, Dunlap, Dunn, English, Fisher, Granger, Grider, Haight, Hall, Harding, Harrison, Holman, Horton, Johnson, Kerrigan, Knapp, Law, Lazear, Leary, Lehman, Mallory, Maynard, Menzies, Nixon, Noble, Norton, Nugen, Odden, Pike, Pendleton, Perry, Phelps of Missouri, Rice of Massachusetts, Richardson, Robbins, Rollins of Missouri, Segar, Sheffield, Shiel, Smith, Steele of New-York, Steele of New-Jersey, Thomas of Massachusetts, Thomas of Maryland, Train, Vallandigham, Voorhees, Wadsworth, Ward, Webster, Wickliffe, Wood, Woodruff.

The House then passed the Senate bill for the relief of Round Shaw and others, (colored,) concurred in Senate amendments, and adjourned.

Removal.

We have changed our place of business from under the St. Nicholas Hotel to No. 539 Broadway, corner Prince-st. (Author Building.)

THE FEATURES OF THE SEASON
ARE
ROGERS & HAYMOND'S NEW STYLES FOR BOYS, including a most attractive fashion in Spring Sacks, the handsomest novelty of its kind ever brought out; school suits, of superfine cut and finish; beautiful dress suits, and all at prices reduced below the market level.
Stores Nos. 121, 123, 125 Fulton-st., and No. 214 Broadway.

Thatch Your Sore, says Goldtuck, and so says the public, when they come here for hats of KNOX'S, Broadway and Fulton-street. The peculiar taste exhibited by him in getting up a Hat has made him the pioneer in that business. Almost every one has Knox's style. This accounts for the general appearance of the ladies on Broadway, in order to admire his new style. "Is it a duck of a hat," says one. "A perfect Knox Hat," says another, &c.

Chirapodists Littlejohn & Westervelt have removed from opposite St. Nicholas Hotel to No. 543 Broadway, a few doors above 16th-st., where they continue their successful treatment of Corns, Bunions, Club and Inverted Nails, &c., &c.

DR. HARROW may be confidentially consulted upon Chronic Diseases, 12 till 2, and from 4 till 8 o'clock, at No. 104 Bleecker-st., first door from Macdougal-st., New-York.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE SHORTEST POSSIBLE TIME, by the most celebrated Physician of London, Paris and Edinburgh, in the discovery of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. By his unrivaled experience in the treatment of these diseases he is enabled to cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige constitutional—cured, the use of Mercury, Iodide of Potassium, Sarsaparilla, &c., stopped in a short time. Diseases of the urinary organs, and those of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few days. Gleet, Stricture, Seminal Weakness of long standing, where all internal remedies have failed, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance, failing to receive prompt treatment, should write, and get a correspondent cure effected by writing full disclosure of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD & CO., No. 167 Leighton-st.

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, Bronchitis, Neuralgia, Rheumatisms, Spasms, &c., are instantly relieved by that marvelous remedy known as CHLORODYNE, which was discovered by Dr. J. Collis Browne, M.D., C.L., L.R.C.P., Army Medical Staff, and which is the only one of 100 recipes published by J. T. DAVENPORT, Pharmaceutical Chemist, No. 33 Great Russell-st., Bloomsbury-square, who is the sole manufacturer. Medical testimony, furnished by the highest authorities in military, naval, and civil practice, and numerous unsolicited testimonials from the public generally, establish the fact, plainly and intelligibly, that it is the most potent, yet safe, of all known remedies, inducing refreshing and soothing sleep, without producing or having any unpleasant effects like opium, and may be taken at any time in a few drop doses. Observe the genuine has the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" engraved on the Government stamp. Price 2s. 9d. per bottle. Sole Agent, JAMES ASPINWALL, Agent New-York, No. 184 William-st.

"NEW MEDICAL BOOK.—DR. BOSTWICK'S Work on Sexual Diseases, Nervous Debility and Abortion, Marriage, Nervous Debility and Impotency, is before us, and we, from motives to make it a work of merit, omitting the most truthful and useful work of the kind ever published, and it will be hailed by the profession as well as the public as a great benefactor to mankind. Quackery is here exposed, and the truth told. It should be in every family, and in the hands of every young man and woman in the land. Boston Medical and Surgical Journal."

Mailed by E. Warren, No. 1 Geoffrey's, No. 491 Broadway, and by Dr. B., at his office, No. 26 Dutch-st., six doors West of Broadway, where Dr. B. will continue the practice of medicine and surgery. Price $3. All interviews confidential.

"Miss Bateman has a pure comedy subject to her powers. Her performances have been from the commencement perfect of personal and dramatic interest."
"She evinced more tenderness than we have yet seen in her portraitures." "Miss Bateman appears to superior advantage in this piece."—Tribune.
"Miss Bateman surpasses herself, and achieves her greatest triumph since the commencement of the her engagement."—Times.
"Miss Bateman played her part with great force and spirit."—World.
"Miss Bateman exhibits extraordinary power, and exercises entire control over the dramatic use of her voice."—Evening Post.
"Her acting the character in the other upon the stage."—Commercial Advertiser.
"It is a superb delineation of character, and is enough of itself to confirm her reputation, if any confirmation were needed, as the best actress on the American stage."—Leader.
"Her Rosa Gregorio carries us to a greater height of sentiment, and makes us willing to accord to her the position, and the greater power of fascination over the human mind."—Commercial Advertiser.
"Miss Bateman has added another to the genuine list of her triumphs."—Herald.
"Her acting was superb throughout."—Evening Times.
"In conclusion, we never saw any rendering more terribly truthful or forcible, more thoroughly and artistically."—Commercial Advertiser.
"Had she played Rosa as other characters, the spleen did manner in which she rendered that of Rosa, would entitle her to unmixed praise for her art, and secure her claim to the proud title of 'Queen of the American Stage.'"—Evening Mirror.
"Miss Bateman's Rosa added another laurel to her chaplet of fame. She most correctly interpreted and powerfully presented the Rosa of the author."—Wilkes' Spirit.

SANITARY.

SANITARY COMMISSION.—THE UNITED States Sanitary Commission will open an office for the examination of its local business at No. 244 Broadway, opposite Crosby-st., on Monday, May 26.
It proposes to consolidate at this office all information that can be obtained from Government and other sources, concerning the importance and arrival of transports, the sick and wounded either arriving at Gilsport, and of the position made of the sick and wounded, and of the sick in transit, and to cooperate with the United States military and medical authorities, in the interest of protection, recreation and disembarkation of sick and wounded.
Medical students, desirous of acting as orderlies on the transports in service of the Commission, will be provided with a pass, on application at the office, and will receive their regular pay, when called to serve.
Male nurses, comprising those employed on the transports, will register their names at this office, with address and reference, and notice required by them.
Surgeons and physicians willing to volunteer in regard to the public service, or wishing to volunteer in emergencies, will apply at this office.
All persons having business with the Commission will apply in person to the Superintendent in charge, between the hours of 11 and 2 P. M. The Executive Committee of the Sanitary Commission will usually meet at the office, at 2 o'clock P. M., daily.
The expenses of the Commission are very heavy. The Commission has sent more than one million dollars' worth of the articles specified in the preceding paragraph, to the Gulf of Mexico, and to the Potomac, and to Virginia ports, and has saved a thousand lives, at least, in Virginia alone.
The various Hospitals and Soldiers' Rests, in and about this City, are invited to report further cases of every description, of sick and wounded, in their respective vicinities.
The following articles of bandage and dressing are required by the Commission, and may be sent to the "Women's General Association of Relief," No. 10 Cooper Institute:
Cotton, greatly wanted.
Cotton fabrics, greatly wanted.
Cotton rollers, greatly wanted.
Cotton (not woollen) wrappers, wanted.
Flannel bandages, wanted.
Lint, tow, charpie, wine, Springtown flint, condensed milk, preserved beans and dehydrated vegetables, Boston baked beans, most welcome, per the cases.
The prodigious demand of the last month, during which time there has accumulated thousands articles of clothing (per 24, and 48 P. IMPORTANT FROM WASHINGTON.

Passage of the Confiscation Bill in the House.

Further Debate on the Tax Bill in the Senate.

Important Declarations of Senator Wilson.

The President Solely Responsible for Recent Military Movements.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Monday, May 26.

NEWS AT THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

No advices have been received at the War Department to-day from Gen. HALLECK. Gen. McCLELLAN telegraphs that his troops have cut the Virginia Central Railroad at three points, between Hanover Court House and the Chickahominy. Nothing else of interest had transpired.

THE SENTIMENT IN WASHINGTON.

The excitement in the city has greatly abated; nevertheless the suspension of travel, the interruption of the mails, and the general confusion and speculation, recall the state of affairs of a twelve month since. The folly of permitting the National Capital to remain another day at the mercy of a single track, is more than ever apparent. If the millionaires, who have so lavishly vented in the Washington and Georgetown railroad, would apply their surplus funds to the construction of a new road to the North, they would render the country an efficient service. Scores of business men are detained here to-day, to their own inconvenience and the alarm of their friends, not because the capital is in danger, but for the reason that the Government, relying on the use of a single track, is obliged to take possession of the only railroad leading from the city.

GEN. M'CLELLAN'S MOVEMENTS.

There should be no disappointment if several days elapse before intelligence of a general attack by McCLELLAN is received. It must be remembered that while the advance of his grand army has been for some time in close proximity to Richmond, the main body had not, at last accounts, reached a proper position for participation in the assault. It was, however, moving forward with a good degree of rapidity.

CONFISCATION IN THE HOUSE.

Confiscation was the absorbing theme in the House to-day. In accordance with custom, Mr. ELIOT, of Massachusetts, the author of the bill so long under discussion, was allowed to address the House for an hour, and then call the previous question. Mr. ELIOT made an urgent appeal in behalf of the Bill, which, after the adoption of Mr. ROSCOE CONKLING's amendment, and the rejection of all others, was passed by a vote of eighty-two ayes to sixty-eight noes. The so-called Emancipation bill, also reported by the Committee, was defeated by a majority of three. Among those who voted for the Confiscation bill were NIXON, of Missouri, and WHALEY, of Virginia. Four of the Massachusetts delegation voted against the Emancipation bill.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

The public debt, it is now ascertained, will not amount to more than five hundred and seventeen millions up to July 1st next. This statement will probably be presented to the House to-morrow by Mr. RAYMOND, who is expected to reply to the statistical part of the recent speech of Mr. VOORHEES.

THE TAX BILL.

When the TAX bill becomes a law, the Committee of Ways and Means will report such amendments to the tariff as are rendered necessary by its provisions.

A BILL TO RESTORE PEACE AND ORDER.

In the Senate, to-day, Mr. HOWE introduced a bill to restore peace and order to the country. In the course of a discussion upon it, Mr. WILSON took occasion to say that the President was responsible for the recent transfer of troops from BANKS' command to that of McDOWELL, and for the previous transfer of FRANKLIN's Division, of McDOWELL's command, to that of McCLELLAN.

GEN. HOOKER.

It is not known what command is to be given to Gen. HOOKER, who is expected here in a few days. It is probable that some important changes will be made in some of the Military Departments after Gen. McCLELLAN occupies Richmond.

GEN. SHIELDS IN THE CITY.

Gen. SHIELDS arrived here last night, and remained at the War Department until an early hour this morning, when he returned to meet his command.

GOV. CURTIN'S REINFORCE.

Gov. CURTIN telegraphs to the Secretary of War that Pennsylvania, already having furnished much more than her quota of troops, is still ready to furnish all the additional troops demanded of her.

FROM MEXICO—FUAREZ NOT FLED.

Semi-official dispatches, received to-day, state, under date of Orizaba, May 6, that the French troops had advanced within three leagues of that city, where they encountered a force of ten thousand Mexicans, and attacked them with success, killing 500 of their number. It does not seem, from the facts in the dispatches, that President JUAREZ and his Cabinet had fled from the City of Mexico to Queretaro, as was recently stated in some newspapers.

GOV. ANDREW'S LETTER.

The letter of Gov. ANDREW, of Massachusetts, to Secretary SEWARD's call for more troops, has been the subject of much and general condemnation. The Massachusetts Congressional delegation is quoted as being strongly opposed to the course pursued by the Governor, but in the light second thought manifested in the Governor's proclamation of to-day, the sentiments expressed in his letter last week will be overlooked, and the men of Massachusetts will again come, in the majesty of their patriotism, "through Baltimore to Washington." The tone of this proclamation of Gov. ANDREW, the only expression of Northern feeling to-day made public here, indicates, however, an exaggerated idea of the consequences of JACKSON's movement. The Capital is as safe as it has been for six months past. For the moment, the fate of BANKS aroused a fear that the rebels might attempt to march into Washington and Maryland, but the risk of the undertaking was not properly considered.

WASHINGTON AND GEORGETOWN RAILROAD.

The second and closing day's subscriptions to the stock of the Washington and Georgetown Railroad Company was one of unusual interest and excitement. The local subscriptions did not amount to much more than three times the par value, (three hundred thousand dollars,) of the whole amount of stock, subscribed by the corporators. The subscriptions from other cities, however, amounted to nearly seventeen times the capital. New-York and Philadelphia were the principal competitors. The whole amount of subscriptions were about one hundred and eighteen thousand shares. Of these about seventy-two thousand shares were subscribed by Philadelphia parties and about twenty-eight thousand by New-York parties.

A GOOD APPOINTMENT.

L. J. Bowman, a prominent lawyer of Williamsburgh, Va., who kept his loyalty amid all the tyranny

[illegible]

I have given you Washington in 2 hr. (though Amadeus might, doubtless, add a great many interesting details; but, unfortunately, he is not in the line of journalism. If he were, the Times would have him on a salary.

Of gossip, little from this, there is not much. Vice-President HAMLIN has returned, and stopped at the National. In this he displayed good judgment. To-morrow, the Senate will resume the consideration of the Tax Bill; the House will make an end of Confiscation; the men-hunters will go out all night in search of fugitive slaves, and Gen. WADSWORTH will refuse to allow any victims to be carried off, to-morrow, till he is assured that they are the property of loyal masters; and the first thorough account of the present state, we shall get from the New-York papers.

HOW NEW-YORK RESPONDS.

SPECIAL ORDERS FROM ADJUTANT-GEN. HILLHOUSE.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW-YORK, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, ALBANY, May 26, 1862.

SPECIAL ORDERS, No. 124.—The Seventh Regiment, National Guard, N. Y. S. M., will proceed to Washington forthwith. Col. LETTERMAN will make requisition upon the Chiefs of the several Departments for such ammunition, equipments and supplies as he may require for the use of his regiment. Col. D. D. TOMPKINS, Assistant Quartermaster-General, U. S. A., will, upon like requisition, furnish the necessary supplies. Dr. SANTERNEZ, United States Medical Purveyor, will furnish the necessary medical supplies. On his arrival in Washington, Col. LETTERMAN will report to Brig.-Gen. WADSWORTH, Military Governor. By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

THOMAS HILLHOUSE, Adjutant-General.

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, STATE OF NEW-YORK, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, ALBANY, May 26, 1862.

SPECIAL ORDERS, No. 125.—The Eighth, Eleventh, Seventy-first and Thirty-seventh Regiments, National Guard, N. Y. S. M., will hold themselves in readiness to proceed to Washington forthwith, upon receipt of orders to that effect. The Commandants of the several regiments above-named will immediately make requisition for ammunition and supplies required by their regiments, upon the Chiefs of the several Departments. The Commandants will immediately report to Col. GEO. ELIOT, Jr., at No. 61 Walker-street, New-York, the available force of their respective commands.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

THOS. HILLHOUSE, Adjutant-General.

STATE OF NEW-YORK, GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, ADJUTANT-GENERAL'S OFFICE, Albany, May 26, 1862.

SPECIAL ORDER, No. 130.—The Eighth, Eleventh, Twenty-second, Thirty-Seventh and Seventy-first Regiments will proceed to Washington forthwith. The commandants of the several regiments will make requisitions upon the chiefs of the several Departments of this State, for such arms, ammunition, equipments and supplies, as they may require for the use of their regiments.

Up a application to Col. GEORGE ELIOT, Jr., No. 61 Walker-street, they will receive orders for transportation.

On their arrival in Washington, the commandants of the several regiments will report to the Adjutant-General of the army.

By order of the Commander-in-Chief.

THOMAS HILLHOUSE, Adjutant-Gen.

(The Twenty-second, we understand, will receive a few recruits previous to the departure.)

MOVEMENT OF THE TWENTY-FIFTH REGIMENT.

ALBANY, Monday, May 26.

The Twenty-fifth New-York Regiment met this morning and resolved to volunteer their services. They are to report the strength of the regiment to the Governor this evening.

The response of the militia throughout the State is most gratifying.

HOW MASSACHUSETTS RESPONDS.

BOSTON, Monday, May 26.

The following is published this morning:

By the Governor and Commander-in-Chief:

A PROCLAMATION.

MEN OF MASSACHUSETTS: The wily and barbarous horde of traitors to the people, to the Government, to our country, and to liberty, menace again the Nation. [illegible]

SPECIAL ASSEMBLING OF TROOPS.

BOSTON, Monday, May 26.

The call upon the volunteer militia of the State for active service is being gloriously responded to. The enthusiasm of April, 1861, is renewed. Regiments, battalions and companies are rapidly arriving from various parts of the State.

Newburyport sent 90 men, enlisted since 1 o'clock this morning! The old Sixth Regiment, which went through Baltimore, is fully recruited and ready to move. A large force will be in readiness to move to-night and during to-morrow.

BOSTON, Monday, May 26—P. M.

The Massachusetts Thirty-second Regiment, Col. F. J. PARKER, left for Washington this evening. The old First Light Battery, Capt. JONES, leave early to-morrow morning. Over 2,000 troops appeared on the Common this afternoon ready for service, and the number will be greatly swelled by arrivals to-morrow.

HOW RHODE ISLAND RESPONDS.

HEADQUARTERS COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF R. I. M., PROVIDENCE, May 25, 1862.

SPECIAL ORDER.

Commandants of the several military companies in this State will immediately assemble their respective commands at the usual places of rendezvous, and report one company, minimum standard, from each organization, to the office of the Adjutant-General, for three months service in Washington.

Officers selected by each company will be commissioned in accordance with United States regulation.

One regiment will be organized from these companies first reporting for service, which will be designated the Eighth Regiment Rhode Island Volunteers, and will leave for Washington at the earliest possible moment.

Uniforms similar to that worn by the "First Regiment R. I. Detached Militia," will be furnished by the Quartermaster-General.

Capt. JOHN T. PYNEAN is appointed Major, and charged with the preliminary organization of the regiment, with headquarters at the office of the Adjutant-General.

The necessities of the country demand that the call should be met by the people of Rhode Island with energy and promptness. WM. SPRAGUE.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF, PROVIDENCE, May 25, 1862.

SPECIAL ORDERS.

Citizens of the State, capable of bearing arms, will at once report themselves to the nearest military organizations.

The commandants of the chartered and volunteer military companies will at once organize their companies, and the men so reporting for duty, by companies of eighty-three men each, and report at once to their headquarters, when they will be armed, equipped and moved, under the direction of the Commander-in-Chief, to Washington, to protect the National Capital from the advance of the rebels, who are rapidly approaching it.

Gen. BURNSIDE is directed to organize and command the First Regiment, and will order his brigade under arms, and form it into a regiment.

The Second Regiment will be under command of Capt. ELLIS, of the U. S. Army.

The Providence Marine Corps of Artillery will be placed under the command of Lieut.-Col. E. C. GALLUP as Captain, and he is directed to organize the same.

Col. SHAW is ordered to assemble the National Guard for organization.

Rhode Island troops will move through Baltimore, and if their progress is impeded by the rebel mob of that city, they will mete out to it the punishment which it has so long merited.

Our regiments will move to Washington to defend the Capital in common with thousands of our patriotic countrymen, who will rush to arms to ward off the danger which is imminent. WM. SPRAGUE.

A. HOZIER, A. A. General.

GOV. SPRAGUE IN THE FIELD.

PROVIDENCE, Monday, May 26.

Enlistments go on rapidly. It is expected that one regiment will leave to-morrow night, and another the next night. The Marine Artillery is also recruiting. Gov. SPRAGUE will accompany our soldiers to the seat of war.

HOW PENNSYLVANIA RESPONDS.

HARRISBURGH, Monday, May 26.

The Governor has issued another order explanatory of yesterday's order calling on the State Militia, stating that no commanding officer of higher grade than Captain will be accepted by the United States, excepting where the regiment is already organized, and all expenses under it to be defrayed by the General Government.

PHILADELPHIA, Monday, May 26.

The most active preparations are making for reinforcing the army at Washington by the reserves and Home Guards. The first regiment of the Reserve Brigade will be ready to-morrow, and three more regiments in thirty-six hours.

HARRISBURGH, Monday, May 26.

The Governor has issued another explanatory order, stating that the call for troops is for three months' Militia men, as stated in the requisition of the President. The call of the Governor is meeting with lively responses from all quarters of the State, and offers of companies and regiments are pouring in.

DEPARTURE OF THE SEVENTH REGIMENT.

THE EXCITEMENT ON BROADWAY.

Once more, the Seventh Regiment, National Guard, has left this City for the defence of Washington. As soon as it was known that more troops were needed, Col. LETTERMAN issued an order for the members of the corps to meet at the armory, in citizens' dress, yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. As early as 8 o'clock the spacious drill-room was crowded by the brave and gallant soldiers, anxious to be the first to answer to the call of Secretary SEWARD. Shortly after, Col. LETTERMAN arrived, and his appearance was hailed with every manifestation of delight by his command.

"This is what I have been wishing for."

"Ain't this jolly?" said another.

"But how can you leave your business?" inquired one.

"This, and this only is my business now," was the response.

Never was there so much enthusiasm shown; the whole of the men seemed to hail their departure from the City as a positive pleasure.

Col. LETTERMAN then read the dispatches from Secretary SEWARD, calling for more troops, which was received with the most vociferous cheering. He then made a short and spirited address, asking the men if they were willing to answer the call. A most unanimous "Yes!" was the answer, and cheer after cheer resounded through the building. Directly after, the orders, published elsewhere, were issued by Col. LETTERMAN.

Immediately the men busied themselves in making preparations for their departure—blankets, canteens, haversacks, and other military paraphernalia was selected, and long before the hour designated the whole of the gallant Seventh were in marching order. At 7 o'clock last evening the regimental line was formed on Lafayette-place. Friends had congregated there; many a fervent "God bless you" was uttered, and many a bright eye was dimmed at parting.

The march down Broadway was a complete triumph; the sidewalks were crowded with an enthusiastic people who cheered themselves hoarse in honor of the brave fellows as they passed. Flags were streaming from the principal buildings; fireworks were let off, and each man endeavored to surpass his neighbor in giving vent to his delight at sending the Seventh once more on its way to the war. The Regiment proceeded to Washington by way of the New-Jersey railroad. Annexed is a list of the principal officers:

Colonel, MARSHALL LETTERMAN; Lieutenant-Colonel, James Price; Major, Benjamin M. Nevers; Adjutant, George W. Smith; Quartermaster, L. W. Winchester; Paymaster, Meredith M. Howland; Assistant Paymaster, J. H. Draper; Surgeon, Dr. Chessman; Chaplain, Rev. Dr. Weston; Captains, Shumway, Riblet, Speaight, Bensell, Farrar, Clark, Boden, Haws, Young and Hix.

The Sixty-ninth Regiment Tender their Services to the Governor.

A meeting of the Sixty-ninth Regiment was held at their Armory, Essex Market, last evening. Maj. EAGLER in the Chair, to determine what action the Regiment would take in reference to the call for more troops. Quartermaster THEIS moved that the services of the Regiment be tendered to the Governor, which was seconded by Lieutenant COSGAR, and unanimously carried. Recruits will be received at [illegible]

AFFAIRS IN BALTIMORE.

The Excitement Renewed again Yesterday—Secessionists Driven from the Streets—A Demand for the Display of Flags, &c.

BALTIMORE, Monday, May 26.

The excitement continues this morning, and all who utter disloyal sentiments on the streets are knocked down.

Baltimore-st. from Calvert to Holliday, is crowded this morning. There is considerable excitement. The crowd are chasing obnoxious people, and occasionally beating some one.

The people are demanding the display of the flag from all the newspaper offices and public buildings. All have complied, except the News sheet which office is closed and abandoned.

The excitement is fearful, and prominent Secessionists have disappeared from the streets.

The military have taken no part in these transactions.

A recruiting office has just been opened in Baltimore-street, displaying a flag, bearing the inscription, "Recruiting Office, First Maryland Avengers."

BALTIMORE, Monday, May 26.

The proprietors of the News sheet have reopened their office, and displayed the flag.

A CORRECTION.

BALTIMORE, Monday, May 26.

Among those mentioned as being molested by the Union men yesterday, the name of ROBERT MCLANE, late Minister to Mexico, was erroneously given. This is incorrect. That gentleman was not molested in any way.

Suicide and Murder.

A MELANCHOLY CASE.

Two inquests were held yesterday by Coroner COLLIN, at Bellevue Hospital—one upon the body of Mrs. LYDIA PHILLIPS, and the other upon the body of her daughter JULIETTA, aged 5½ years, both of whom died under the following circumstances: Mrs. PHILLIPS is a native of Switzerland, and about 28 years of age. In the early part of the present year her husband enlisted in one of the regiments of the Sickles Brigade, and was killed at the battle of Williamsburgh. When the news of this battle arrived here, and the wife found the name of her husband among the list of the killed in that action, she became almost frantic with grief, and notwithstanding the efforts of many kind friends to console her, she made known to several that she had no longer any object worth living for, and was therefore determined to die. Shortly after this, while crossing the ferry from Brooklyn to this City, she made an attempt to throw both herself and child—the one above-mentioned—into the river. The child, however, held her back, and screamed for aid just as she was about to take the leap into the water.

On Sunday last she and the child JULIETTA were found by the Police at her residence, No. 235 Avenue A, both in an insensible condition. Mrs. PHILLIPS was lying upon a bed in one room, and her daughter in a room adjoining. They were immediately conveyed to Bellevue Hospital, and every assistance possible was rendered, but without success; they both died soon after. An empty five-ounce bottle, which had contained laudanum, was found in the possession of the unfortunate woman. The verdict of the jury in the case of Mrs. PHILLIPS was, "that she came to her death by means of a narcotic poison, administered by herself." In the case of the child, the jury believed that the cause of death was owing to a dose of the same kind of poison, administered by the mother. She is said to have been a very intelligent and respectable woman, well known to many people in this City and Brooklyn.
